

From the early 1980's model makers became really infatuated with the 5 Turbo and since that time countless models have been produced in plastic, white metal, die cast and in resin. I don't think anyone really knows the true number of models available but everytime you go to a car boot sales to an autojumble a different one seems to appear. I have it on good authority that there is even a radio controlled model available, but this I have never seen. The Corgi 1/45 scale is the most commonly found example in the UK but the various Solido models are often seen as well. Models have been found in the most unlikely places which include a coffee shop on the top of a Swiss mountain and in a shop at Pisa airport. I have listed below the known models, happy hunting!
